ACCESS FOR ALL

All Utahns deserve access to high-quality health care. You will find that at Community Health Centers throughout Utah.

13 Utah health centers operate 54 clinics in urban and rural communities and provide care to more than 166,000 people annually.

Utah health centers are critical to the health care delivery system. Access to high-quality, primary and preventive health care is available to individuals and families, regardless of ability to pay or insurance status.

MOVING TOWARD VALUE-BASED CARE

In July 2019, HRSA awarded Association for Utah Community Health (AUCH) funding to establish a Health Center Controlled Network. The network, Utah Technology Exchange for Community Health, will expand the use of health information technology to empower patients and promote interoperability to deliver better value and better health across Utah’s communities.
INTEGRATION OF BEHAVIORAL HEALTH AND SUBSTANCE USE DISORDER TREATMENT

IN 2018, UTAH HEALTH CENTERS PROVIDED:

NEARLY 35,000 MENTAL HEALTH AND SUBSTANCE USE DISORDER TREATMENT VISITS

NEARLY 900 PATIENTS WITH MEDICATION ASSISTED TREATMENT (MAT) FOR OPIOID USE DISORDERS

INCREASE IN PATIENTS WHO RECEIVED MAT FROM 2017 TO 2018: 89%
ADDRESSING SOCIAL DETERMINANTS OF HEALTH

ROOTED IN COMMUNITY HEALTH

Addressing social determinants of health (SDOH) is rooted in the Health Center Program. The first health center, established in 1965, proposed interventions to address poor health and extreme poverty by not only providing access to medical care, but also addressing root causes such as access to food, housing, clothing, water and sanitation, jobs, education, and transportation services.

In recent decades, growing health care costs and increased demand for services have forced many health centers to focus their efforts solely on medical care. Now with emerging evidence indicating that addressing SDOH can improve overall health and well-being, health centers are making attempts to return to those initial models.

SDOH IN ACTION
RESPOND - ASSESS - ADDRESS

CHWs trained by AUCH’s Utah Healthcare Corps program screened more than 900 clients over the past three years to identify the top five SDOH needs, utilizing the PRAPARE tool. The Protocol for Responding to and Assessing Patients’ Assets, Risks, and Experiences (PRAPARE) tool was developed to help health centers and CHWs better understand and act on their clients’ needs.

MOVING FORWARD

In response to this need, AUCH partnered with the Alliance for Determinants of Health, a collaborative between Intermountain Healthcare; government agencies; and community-based organizations including Midtown Community Health Center in Ogden and Family Healthcare in St. George. The Alliance utilizes AUCH Community Health Workers (CHWs)—trained lay people who share socioeconomic backgrounds, ethnicity, language, and/or life experiences with clients—to bridge health care and community resources to reduce barriers that prevent people from leading their healthiest lives.

55% of clients who completed intervention with an AUCH CHW moved from “disengaged and struggling” to “self-aware and building confidence”.

CY 2019 Utah Healthcare Corps Program data
In this document, unless otherwise noted, the term “health center” is used to refer to organizations that receive grants under the Health Center Program as authorized under section 330 of the Public Health Service Act, as amended (referred to as “grantees”) and FQHC Look-Alike organizations, which meet all Health Center Program requirements but do not receive Health Center Program grants. It does not refer to FQHCs that are sponsored by tribal or Urban Indian Health Organizations, except for those that also receive Health Center Program grants.
